One of the main part of the Film Camp is Kids' Guernica, an international children's art project to create a peace mural on a Picasso's "Guernica" size (3.5m x 7.8m) canvas. What is this project?

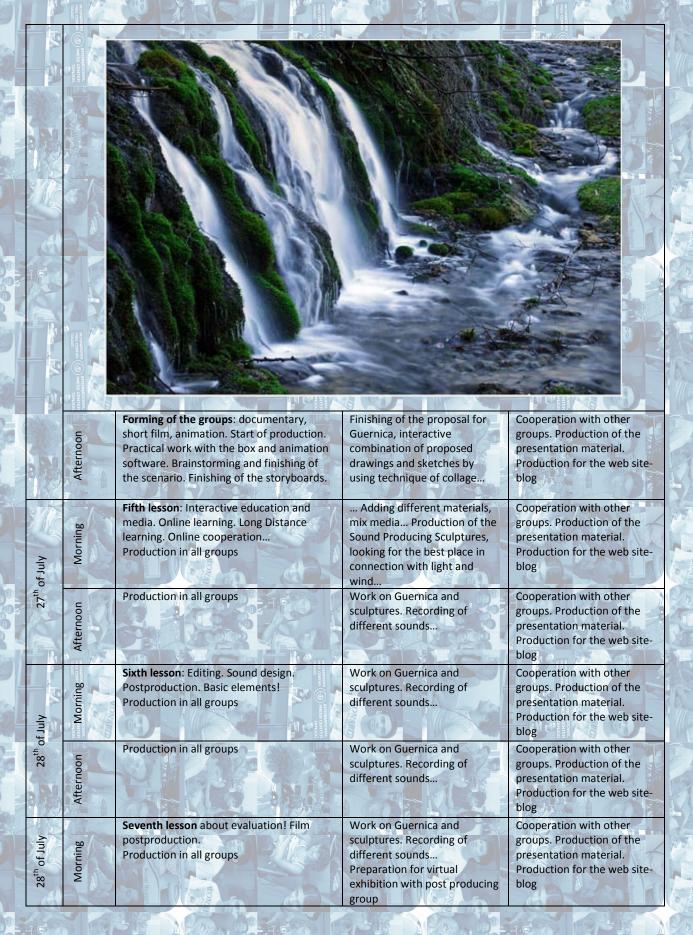

Pablo Picasso created "Guernica" to protest against the brutality of bombing during the Spanish civil war in 1937. He painted "Guernica" on a canvas, which made it possible to move from Paris to London, New York, and then Madrid.

Kids' Guernica peace mural is also painted on a movable canvas. Murals are usually painted on walls, which often imply separation. The movable mural is a metaphor for removing separation. World peace can not be accomplished without removing separation among nations, races, religions, cultures and people.

Kids' Guernica is an artwork on a global canvas, expressing the spirit of peace and connecting people. More than 160 peace paintings were already created in 40 countries of the world. If you connect all the workshop spots on the globe, a wonderful drawing will be appeared.

English lessons:

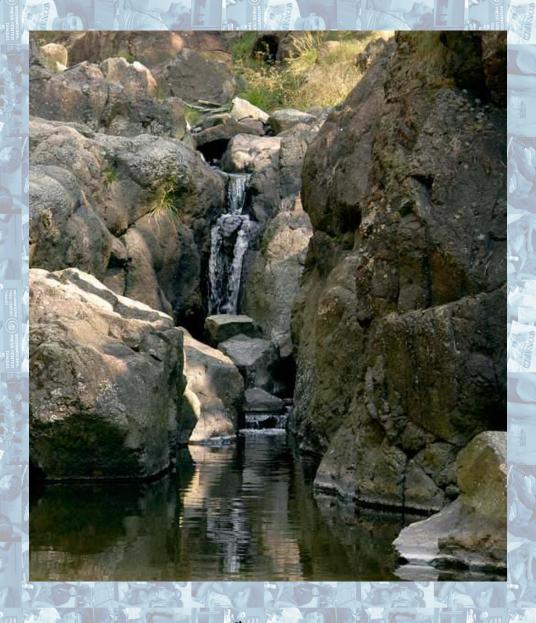

English Lessons-motivation for Animation English, communication and Radi@TION English Evening Cinema By Andrea Djilvesi

The idea behind giving English lessons as part of the evening activities occurred to me when I realized that a lot of my students learn English more easily by listening to music in English or watching films in English. The idea seemed even better when I realized that through these films, I can also explain some basic elements of film making, such as character building and plot development.

The English lessons are also part of team building because it encourages the children to interact with each other and helps them overcome their fear of being criticized if they make a mistake while talking.

The lesson would be done as follows:

- 1. They would be a part of evening activities and should last up to an hour OR if the participants wish, as long as the film being watched lasts. If there are younger children or participants who do not speak English very well, this could be done as part of the morning activities, with more focus on vocabulary.
- 2. Each evening, the lessons would start with a discussion on a topic related to the film which would be played or projected that night or morning. For beginners, animated short stories in English would be a great choice.
- 3. The discussion would be based on three or more questions related to the topic. (e.g.: Do you like superheroes? If yes, what does being a superhero mean to you? If you could be a superhero, what kind of powers would you like to have?). For the beginners and younger participants, the discussion should be based on vocabulary, namely words that are generally used when describing a superhero.
- 4. After the discussion, the participants should be encouraged to guess which film would be played. As an additional activity, certain observation points could be added, to direct their attention to specific aspects of the film. (e.g.: Who is\are the superhero(es) in the film? What kind of powers do they have? When they are not playing a superhero, what kind of a person are they? What is the message of the film?)
- 5. After watching the film (if it is short) or part of the film, the lesson should be ended with the participants answering the previously stated questions, give more ideas of their own, such as whether they liked the film or not, what is it that they liked about it and what is it that they did not.
- 6. If they film is long, it should be split into two parts. It is a good idea to give the children a follow up activity they could do (e.g.: draw a superhero of their own this could be used then as a basis for developing a story that could be animated in The Box).
- 7. Games and activities should be used to allow the participants to get comfortable with each other.
- 8. The films played would be determined based on the age of the participants. If they are younger, animated films should be used. It is also very important to bear in mind the attention span of younger participants.
